Thomas Schael presents in his seminar at Trento University the work done during the past years in two ESPRIT and IST Projects in the knowledge management area: Klee&Co (Knowledge and Learning Environments for European & Creative Organisations, started in 1998 and ended in 2000) and MILK (Multimedia Interaction for Learning and Knowing, started in early 2002 and expected to be closed by 2004). These projects involved several European partners (Xerox, University of Milan, Philips Design, Domus Academy, Fraunhofer Institute, Irso, Butera e Partners, PictureSafe) and built an international network of public and private companies and academic institutions interested in the knowledge management and new ways of working topics.
